Since the September 11th terrorist attacks, homeland security - including Overview of the Presidents securing our nations borders - has become a critical issue. To mobilize and Homeland Security Strategy organize our nation to secure the homeland from attack, the administration and the Homeland Security 5 issued, in July 2002, a federal strategy for homeland security. Act Subsequently, the Congress passed and the President signed the Homeland Security Act, which established DHS in January 2003. Among other things, the strategy provides for performance of six mission areas, each aligned with a strategic objective, and identifies major initiatives associated with these mission areas. One of the mission areas is border and transportation 6 security. For the border and transportation security mission area, the strategy and the act specify several objectives, including ensuring the integrity of our borders and preventing the entry of unwanted persons into our country. To accomplish this, the strategy provides for, among other things, reform of immigration services, large-scale modernization of border crossings, and 7 consolidation of federal watch lists. It also acknowledges that accomplishing these goals...
