The historical fiction series The Wandering King is based on events described in The History by the father of history, Herodotus. People know the story of King Leonidas and the famous last stand of the 300 Spartans at the pass of Thermopylae, but many of Herodotus best stories have never gotten any press. For instance, Leonidas was one of four brothers who fought for the Spartan throne. Some historians theorize that Leonidas may have decided to sacrifice himself in the pass because if he had returned home to Sparta, he might have been put on trial for murder - the murder of his eldest brother Cleomenes, whose sudden and mysterious death made Leonidas king. Recent books and movies on the subject tend to leave out the facts that Leonidas was a twin and that his wife Gorgo was Cleomenes daughter, making her Leonidas niece. Though Leonidas is a character in The Wandering King, this is not his story. The novel is told from the perspective of Leonidas nephew, Euryanax, who is mentioned by Herodotus as a Greek commander at the climactic...
