Excerpt: . those of many Unitarian preachers, because he loved his fellow men and because of the nobility with which he took the part of the oppressed. Mr. Parker I remember in his pulpit; I also remember him as the rare but honored guest at my father s table. Their temperaments were much unlike. My father regretted occasionally, in the ejaculations which he made in his journal, that he could not do a soldier s work; that he was born a seeing eye, and not a doing hand ; but he honored the doing hand and always stood up for it. My best service will be to read these passages from the journal of my father. At this May-time in 1835 he wrote: There is hardly a surer way to incur the censure of infidelity and irreligion than sincere faith and an entire devotion. For,...
