Chairman, mr. President, ladies and gentlemen, I m not quite why I m doing this, and neither are you. What can I say, and how shall I say it? In a letter dated August 30, 1928 from West China, the Rev. Thomas Torrance wrote to T. F. Torrance: Dear Torn, This is your fifteenth birthday. I m glad you have made a start in public. Keep on. To begin with, if you can tell a short story or incident and pack into it a message and an appeal, you ll find it easier to begin with and you ll speak to more purpose than by confining yourself to abstract speech. There s a template! The suggestion that I should say something tonight came the day after Elizabeth and I arrived here last month, and it s a great honor to be here. Before leaving London we called the registrar s office to find the nearest airport to Princeton, and we arrived in lax, on a fine sunny afternoon in late January. After a few days with our son and his wife in Westwood, California, we drove across to the Seminary, taking in a short detour to that archetypal Presbyterian festival, Mardi Gras in New Orleans. And so I stand before you tonight, a sheep in sheep s clothing, a simple Southern Californian, which gives me the chance to say a word of personal thanks to a couple of real Californians. We met them again by accident a few months back when we all happened to be visiting Tom Torrance. To their great generosity, I and generations of our Glasgow Peter Marshall scholars are...
