

The Little Foxes Spoil the Vines (Paperback)

By Naliza Burton Linley

Hhpublishing, United States, 2011. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The Little Foxes Spoil the Vines is a small book with a power packed treatise on unforgiveness. This book is timely reminder of the mandate God has given us on forgiving others as well as ones self. It counsels you how to forgive when you do not have the slightest inclination of how to do it and most of all you do not see how it is possible. Little Foxes suggests how unforgiveness can bring devastation on ones body, mind and soul, and how practicing a forgiving spirit increases our physical, mental and spiritual well-being. About the Author Naliza Burton Linley is the daughter of the late John Henry and Cherry Bynum. Her early years were spent in Emerson, Arkansas. She migrated to Dallas, Texas in 1954 with her first husband, Joe Gene Burton and son, Horace Gene Burton. Her daughter, Marilyn Patrice Burton, was born in Dallas, Texas in 1958. All of whom are now deceased. She still resides in Dallas, Texas along with husband J. R. Linley. A retired Nurse, Naliza is currently a member of United Holiness Deliverance Temple Church...
