Beautifully illustrated throughout in colour from the author s own collection of photographs, this spectacular book is the work of one of the world s most-travelled authorities on wetland birds. Still a haven for huge breeding populations of herons, storks, ibises, spoonbills, aningas, cormorants, wildfowl, waders, and birds of prey, wetlands are some of the world s last and best wild places. Features: * Contains a superb collection of bird photographs * Describes some of the world s most important wetland habitats * Considers the important questions of conservation in these increasingly threatened environments.
