VDM Verlag, 2009. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. Irredentism in foreign policy constitutes an interesting but not quite developed field in the IR literature. This study discusses the background conditions and sources of irredentist foreign policies. The book is based on a comparative case study, - juxtaposing Serbia and Albania, - that allows for an examination of various variables and characteristics of each case. While the process tracing method allows to critically examine the historical processes in both countries when the windows of opportunity for irredentist policies open up. The main aim of the book is to discuss the patterns of foreign policy toward kin in both countries and to provide an answer of why Serbia became increasingly irredentist in the aftermath of Communism, while Albania refrained from following up. The research builds up on a rationale that focuses on the role of intermediate societal ideas, interests and institutions in fomenting irredentist policies. Hence, the question that this thesis seeks to answer is: how do these societal ideas, interest and institutions shape foreign policy with regard to ethnic kin across the border. Second, why does this happens only at some periods, but not in others?.
