Reviews

This ebook will never be effortless to get started on studying but extremely fun to read through. It is actually written in easy phrases and never difficult to understand. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

PART I THE METALS Reactions of the Metals of Group I The metals, silver, mercury (-ous), and lead, comprising this group, are distinguished from all others by the insolubility of their chlorides in water and in dilute acids. With the exception of the nitrates and acetates, which are colorless, nearly all the salts of the metals of this group are insoluble in water. Silver 1. Hydrochloric acid or a soluble chloride, when added to solutions of silver salts, gives a white, curdy precipitate of silver chloride (AgCl) which darkens on exposure to light. The precipitate is insoluble in water, the solubility being approximately 1 part in 700,000 parts of water; it is insoluble in dilute acids and in dilute aqua regia, but is somewhat soluble in concentrated acids. Ammonium hydroxide readily dissolves it, with the formation of silver ammonia chloride [Ag DEGREESH3 DEGREESCI]: -- $\text{AgCl} + 2\text{NH}_3 = \text{Ag}(\text{NH}_3)_2\text{Cl}$, from which AgCl reprecipitates on acidification with nitric acid: -- $\text{Ag}(\text{NH}_3)_2\text{Cl} + 2\text{HNO}_3 = \text{AgCl} + 2\text{NH}_4\text{NO}_3$. Silver chloride also dissolves in solutions of potassium cyanide and sodium thiosulphate; DEGREES when cautiously heated, it fuses without decomposition. 2. Hydrogen Sulphide and soluble sulphides precipitate black Ag_2S , insoluble in cold dilute acids, alkali hydroxides, and alkali sulphides; it is soluble in hot dilute HNO_3 , with the formation of AgNO_3 and separation of sulphur. The reaction can be considered as taking place in two steps, the first consisting of the solution of the sulphide with the liberation...
