Not illustrated. 1910 Excerpt: . . . perhaps it would not be giving the law too wide a propagation to inform public school teachers of its existence. Much valuable information and data could be secured in this way without expense. They are now not cognizant of the laws existence, and day after day they see a bright, interesting pupil fail in physical and mental strength because of burdens too heavy for childish shoulders--burdens resting there by virtue of the states refusal to grant adequate home aliment for mothers not adjudged unworthy. A tragic tale of such a defeated thirteenyear-old girl, has just been left on my desk by a teacher who, had she known of this law, could have saved the child. A tremendous opportunity has been given the boards of education in Ohio to become pioneers in the work of preserving for the child, home care and influence. If they have the wisdom and the vision fearlessly to allow their relief law a reasonable and fair operation, they will lay the foundation stone for not only a system of education that extends from the university to the kindergarten, but one which protects and nourishes the great underlying power for the spiritual well-being of the child--the mother in the home. See Widowhood in the Juvenile Court, S. T. Brockinbrlflife. III. -- THE DINNER TOTER By Charles L. Coon, Secretary, North Carolina Child Labor Committee, Wilson. N. C. St. Paul very likely had some acquaintance with that class of men who hire out their children...
