Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | A survey of plant growth promoting bacteria in the rhizosphere of Araucaria angustifolia | Araucaria angustifolia or Brazil Pine is a typical tree of the endangered Atlantic Forest biome, and for many decades it was the source of Brazilian wood. This species is also very important in providing food and feed, as well as raw material for joinery, cellulose pulp and varnish. Due to the economic and environmental importance of A. angustifolia, research projects involving the preservation and management...
