The report also estimated that its aggressive-investment scenario, which assumed that rail-Composition of Class I Railroad roads would make substantial investments to improve Traffic, 2004 and expand service, would require between 205 billion 43 and 225 billion over 20 years. (Share of tons carried) The Bottom Line Reports cost and benefit estimates were intended more to be illustrative than to be quantitatively precise. The authors did not specify the timing of the Other (21) costs and benefits and did not attempt to state net bene-fits in terms of present discounted value. Because the Food and Kindred Coal benefits are likely to come later in the time period than Products (43) the costs, the estimates presented in the report are likely (5) to overstate the net benefits. That is, in present-value Mixed terms, the net benefits would likely be...
