Excerpt from The Journal of the Royal Geographical Society of London, 1845, Vol. 15 Geographical Surveys of the Great Operations of the Russian and General Tenner. - whilst, through the exertions of her prenot en lightened Emperor, the interior of Russia in Europe is undergoing vast improvements - among which the great railroad connecting St. Petersburg and Moscow, and the splendid bridge, on massive granite piers, over the rapid Neva (an effort from which all preceding sovereigns have shrunk), are the most striking, the frontiers of that vast empire are everywhere being surveyed by competent geographers. Even along the central portion of the wild and rugged boundary line, between Siberia and China, surveys, conducted by Colonel Silvehjelm, have produced most detailed and elaborate maps of regions, hitherto only approached at rare intervals by casual travellers. Honoured with the confidence of the Imperial Government, I have recently had the privilege of inspecting these splendid results, and in viewing in detail the physical features of the mountainous tracts, which lie around the great lakes, or interior seas of Balkhat-danghize and Novr Saissar names scarcely known to geographers, but which enrich the archives of the imperial etat-major. But, apart from these field-surveys, the scientific power of Russia is employed, under the direction of that eminent astronomer and mathematician, Struve, in realizing one of the most arduous enterprises of modern times - to measure an arc of the earth's meridian along her whole western or European frontier, which, when completed, will be the most extensive operation ever yet executed by any government. Commenced by M. Struve in 1820, the progress of this work was reported on by him...
