I was walking around Santa s toy factory smelling everything while looking for any sign of fire. My job as a black-and-white spotted Dalmatian fire dog was to find fires in any size building, large or small, on Santa s vast property. The land that Santa s toy factory sat on was four mountains square and snow covered. Large green-and-red windmills spun madly on its steep mountain peaks making electricity for the whole North Pole village to enjoy. Santa s house looked like an old English farmhouse with walls made of large gray stones two foot thick. Five beautiful hand-carved ivory pillars held up the strong slate-covered front porch roof. Santa s house was stone while the other buildings on the property were made of straw, mud, and snow.
