Downey of Wyoming Territory in the House of Representatives, Tuesday, April 13, 1880, a Bill Providing for Certain Paintings on the Walls of the National Capitol Ah! me, what strange wild fancies crowd the brain Of mortal man, who, wearied with the toil And ceaseless combat of the rolling years, Seeks rest in slumber deep and undisturbed. His mind, transformed, becomes a temple filled With forms intangible, immortal sprites, From chaos rising, back to chaos borne. Unnumbered throngs pass by, nor leave behind A foot-print on the plains of memory. But myriads, eager, clamor to be heard; And though the brain oerwearied close the gate And portals of the inner consciousness To bar the phantoms out into the night, Bolts cannot bar nor iron chain them down. Returning swift with strength increased they knock And thunder at the doorways of the soul To gain admission, till they batter down All barriers and rush triumphant in, Bearing the captive Will in fetters bound. The mind, unable longer to resist Or strive for mastery oer the spells they weave, Follows submissive where their pleasure leads. Lo! one of radiant form and face divine There stood whose hands the Holy Bible clasped Her brow, like fair Columbias, broad and full, Neath which her brown eyes looked in wistful and intensely earnest tenderness, was bound With fadeless wreaths of shining immortelles; -Not beauty, grandeur, and sublimity Alone illumined and adorned her face; But mercy, purity, and perfect peace, With deathless love harmoniously blent: -As erst upon Mount Hermon, glory crowned, Our Lord and Saviour Christ was round enwrappd With shimmering mantle of eupernal light, Transfiguring His form and robes, until His gleaming garments glittered white as snow, And on His face the glow of lightning fixed, While...
