Till, from having gone through half the books on the shelf, They were almost as wise as Sir Thomas himself. Well, it happen d one day, --I really can t say The particular month; but I think twas in May, -- Twas, I know, in the Spring-time, --when Nature looks gay, As the Poet observes, --and on tree-top and spray The dear little dickey-birds carol away; When the grass is so green, and the sun is so bright. And all things are teeming with life and with light, -- That the whole of the house was thrown into affright, For no soul could conceive what was gone with the Knight! It seems he had taken A light breakfast--bacon, An egg--with a little broil d haddock--at most A round and a half of some hot butter d toast,...
