WE German Navy Law Amendment Act was passed by the Reichstag on May first, This is the last of the five enactments for the expansion of the German Fleet, and it is the most notable and menacing to her neighbours. It is proposed to add only three large ships, two cruisers and seventy-two submarines to the established strength of the fleet, but the grave feature of the Act consists in the resolve to set up a new standard of naval efficiency. For many years all nations in the interest of economy kept a large proportion of their men-of-war in reserve. Under the impetus of Germany the tendency of administrations has lately been to achieve rapid action--quick transition from the conditions of peace to those of hostilities. Now the German naval authorities have taken a further step in the same direction, which must impose on Europe the burden of war in times of peace. In future, within four hundred miles of the British Isles, all the most effective ships of the German Navy -battleships, cruisers and torpedo craft-will be held on the leash-manned, stored, victualled and incessantly trained. The German Fleet as now planned will be superior in fighting strength and more instantly ready for aggression or defence than the fleet of any Power in the past. So far as shipbuilding is concerned, the British people knew in 1906 in the words of Sir Edward Grey-that Germany was creating a fleet larger than had ever existed before. Now it has been decided that, winter and summer alike, at moments when there is not a cloud on the political horizon, and at moments when there are signs of...
