Excerpt from Jefferson Memorial: An Essay In the same year he embarked upon his political career, Jefferson also began to build Monticello, the lovely home on a densely wooded summit not far from his birthplace. There were no architects in Virginia, so Jefferson became his own architect; and the versatility he showed in this endeavor marked a permanent trait. Learning architecture from books, he discovered his master in the Renaissance Italian Andrea Palladio, who had gone to Roman antiquity for his models. The lesson of Palladio was that the laws of architecture were as universal, chaste, and harmonious as Newtonian laws of nature. Monticello was a modified Palladian villa, and all Jefferson's later architectural masterpieces - the Virginia Capitol, Poplar Forest, the University of Virginia - were in the Palladian manner.
