The Economy of Esteem: An Essay on Civil and Political Society

By Professor of Social and Political Theory Geoffrey Brennan, William Nelson Cromwell Professor of Politics Philip Pettit

Oxford University Press, United Kingdom, 2006. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 230 x 156 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .However much people want esteem, it is an untradable commodity- there is no way that you can buy the good opinion of another or sell to others your good opinion of them. And yet esteem is allocated in society according to systematic determinants: people s performance, publicity, and presentation relative to others will help to fix how much esteem they enjoy and how much disesteem they avoid. In turn, rational individuals are bound to compete with one another, however tacitly, in the attempt to increase their chances of winning esteem and avoiding disesteem. And this competition shapes the environments in which they each pursue esteem, setting relevant comparators and benchmarks, and determining the cost that a person must bear for obtaining a given level of esteem. Hidden in the multifarious interactions and exchanges of social life, then, there is a quiet force at work - a force as silent and powerful as gravity - which molds the basic form of people s relationships and associations. This force was more or less routinely invoked in the writings...
