Excerpt from The Latter-Day Saints Millennial Star, Vol. 69: June 27, 1907 In reply to this question I will say that the Elders of the Church have not been sent into the world to tear down any religion. The instructions which we have received from the Lord on this matter are very explicit. They are as follows: Contend against no church save it be the church of the devil. (doe. And Gov. 18: We uphold everything that is good and pure and holy and true, for such cometh of God; we condemn everything that is Sinful, nu holy, unjust and false, for all these come from the evil one. We have been sent into the world, not to condemn the world, but to teach the people the true plan of life and salvation. We have come to tell them, as Jesus told the people in His day, that there is but one way, but one gate, but one straight and narrow path leading to the kingdom of heaven; that there is but one Lord, one faith and one baptism. We have come to tell them that there can be but one true Christian Church; that Christ is not divided, that He is not the author of contention, but of peace; that those who call themselves by His name Should be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment, and that there should be no division among them. Can any reasonable objection be raised to such teaching? IS it not strictly scriptural? Would it not be a glorious sight to see Christians of all denominations united together in love and fellowship, all Speaking the same thing? What a...
