General Accounting Office, 2001 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)54514764 Subject: Fines (Penalties) -- United States. Excerpt: . . . Lastly, CMS does not have formal written policies and procedures for determining its allowance for uncollectible accounts. As previously noted, CMS stated that its allowance for uncollectible accounts represents the balance of all CMP debt delinquent for 60 days or longer that is considered to be inactive and truly delinquent based on a case-by-case review of each receivable. According to SFFAS No. 1, losses due to uncollectible amounts should be measured through a systematic methodology with an analysis of both individual accounts and a group of accounts as a whole. Individual account analysis should be based on factors such as the debtors ability to pay and the probable recovery of amounts from secondary sources. Group analysis should be performed using a method such as statistical estimation by modeling or sampling and should take into consideration such factors as historical loss experience and recent economic events. However, CMS allowance for uncollectible accounts is not based on a systematic analysis of the collectibility of the outstanding receivables balance. CMP debt collection policies and procedures have been established by Incomplete and CMS for the long-term care debt and by HHS OIG and DOJ for the fraud and Unreliable CMP Data abuse debt. However, incomplete and unreliable CMP information limited us from determining the overall adequacy of the CMP debt collection Limited the policies and procedures. As a result and as agreed with your staff, we Determination of performed limited tests of CMS debt collection policies and procedures. Overall Adequacy of We found that debt collection policies and procedures were followed for 11 of the...
