The well-dressed woman of twenty-seven with nicely cut features, who stands peering into the adjoining room through the crack of the door at your right is Alice - Mrs. Henry Matthewson. The woman of fifty who comes ominously from the hall through the opening directly facing you is Jane Temple. Mrs. Temple. Is she crying about it? Alice [with a shrug]. No! Mrs. Temple. Gorges one reason for not leaving this house for ever is that he can t find his hat! [She exhibits an opera hat concealed by a copy of The Lady. Alice. Mother! You are hiding George s hat? Mrs. Temple. Shall we have Sylvia jilt this boy at the church door? Have him mary some other girl, out of pique, within six weeks, and make us all ridiculous? Alice, we must get her through the next eighteen hours somehow!...
