The Southwest Counterfeiter: How I Made and Passed Over $2 Million in Counterfeit $100 Supernotes (Paperback)

By Garbis Krajekian

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Garbis (Gary) Krajekian had a normal boyhood growing up in the predominantly Armenian-Christian, small town of Kessab, in northwest Syria. At nineteen, he came to the United States as a medical student to continue his education, but soon found himself dealing with besetting and seemingly insuperable adversity. For the next few years, he struggled to scrape a living, and eventually, addled and abject, he placated his scruple and succumbed to the absurd idea of literally making his own money. His escapade lasted more than a decade. An inventor by nature, Gary built his own papermaking and intaglio-printing machines, and used modern technology and centuries-old techniques to replicate the security features of three different series of genuine $100 notes. The Unites States government, in its indictment and sentencing memorandum, used terms such as reverse-engineered and sophisticated counterfeit product to describe his bills, and labeled him a master counterfeiter. His bills defeated most counterfeit detection methods and devices, and even made it past the banks counting machines and into the Federal Reserve System. They were of such high quality and became so prolific in...
