C. : United States Environmental Protection Agency, Office of Inspector General, 2006 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)70834369 Subject: Drinking water -- Purification -- United States. Excerpt: . . . Obviously, the systems we visited did not identify poor management as a current concern because it might reflect on them. However, we were told several times that people did not have enough time to understand the regulations or complete necessary paperwork. One Massachusetts system discussed the neglect of the previous water board that had mired the system in noncompliance issues. One operator described the water systems commissioners as not too smart and not taking advantage of any provided training. We heard of system managers who were only part-timers (e. g. , school bus driver, volunteer) or had until recently performed other professions (e. g. , nursing technician). Lack of Long-Term Planning One aspect of poor management that carries over to some of the other challenges is planning deficiencies. The challenge of long-term planning was cited in National Drinking Water Advisory Council, International Colloquium, and the Universities Council on Water Resources articles...
