Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Bed-Load Transportation in Mountain Creek This apparatus is intended for the measurement of that part of the bed material in movement that cannot be measured as suspended load because it moves close to the bed where its velocity cannot be determined. This bed material is continuously making contact with the bed and often interrupts its movement by periods of rest. The average distance between two points of rest has been measured to be about 100 times the diameter of the grain. For an average diameter of the grain in Mountain Creek of mm this average distance would be 90 mm or less than 4 inches. As the probability for longer steps decreases logarithmically, a step of 2 feet has only a probability of or about 1 in 500. Therefore, if a slot is made to extend completely across the stream bed 2 feet wide in the direction of flow, of this part of the bed load will be deposited in it. Any bed material moving in suspension must be determined separately by means of suspended-load samples. In the case of Mountain Creek suspended-load samples showed that no significant amount of bed material moved in suspension during the observed stages. A two-foot slot, therefore, would catch essentially all of the bed load as defined in the Introduction. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
