Temair Publishing Ireland. Paperback. Condition: New. 398 pages. Dimensions: 8.0in. x 5.0in. x 1.0in. Father Cormac is a good and a brave monk, honed by the desert. He is not so simple. Aba James speaks well of him. I would trust him. Yet he's whimsical like many Celts. He is known to converse with a hare who claims to be the soul of the prophet Zachariah. So it was that the Patriarch of Alexandria chose Father Cormac mac Fliande for the task that would bring light to the Dark Ages. In 36AD radical Jewish teacher and zealot, Yeshua ben Pandira lies dying of his wounds in Judaea. Disturbed by a vision that his teachings will be misused by the Roman Empire, Yeshua lives long enough to dictate his final testament, later known as The Word, to Joseph of Arimithaea. However because of its radical teachings, The Word is suppressed by the early church and completely disappears in the third century. Then in 2015 The Word is re-discovered buried under the ruins of an ancient church in Ireland. How did it get there from biblical Judaea and what are the implications for the modern world of its radical message? The Hares Vision is beautifully written, vividly imagined and wise. It is a bewitching story of the odyssey in the sixth century of a devout Celtic monk, Cormac, his muse Zachariah the hare and their strange band of companions who struggle to protect The Word from those who would suppress its inspiring and radical message. This is such an important book for the Irish people, . . . . it could give the Irish the promise of a new start in life among each other. I am flabbergasted by this book. It remains exciting until the end (and afterwards somehow). The story...
