Excerpt from John Laporte, Landscape Painter and Etcher, Born 1761, Died 1839; P. La Cave, Landscape Painter All agree that he was born in Who his parents were and where they lived are facts which seem to have been completely forgotten. His name is probably a sufficient indication that he was of French origin, and even if he was not born in France, it is not unlikely that he was brought up in a French-speaking milieu, for expressions occur in his letters which seem to indicate that even when he had reached the age of 47, English was still something of a foreign tongue to him. Thus he says, I inclose the letter which I received this week on a request to present it, again, I here transmit a list of the number of drawings with there external measurement nearly; again.
