Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Modern Buildings, Their Planning, Construction and Equipment, Vol. 3: Part I, School and Hospital Planning; Part II, the Law of Easements The hall is entirely top lighted by means of dormers, with the exception that in each end gable there is a large semicircular window, the Cloakrooms being kept low to allow of its introduction. The classrooms are all separately roofed, and there is a gutter between their roof and the schoolroom roof. While this construction is economical, as enabling the central hall to be kept quite low, it has the disadvantage of forming a snow-trap in bad weather, which needs cleaning out with some care, - and even at the best of times any water which collects in a hidden gutter of this sort is always difficult to get away. Another very complete school on the same system is that now being erected for the Borough of Bexhill from the designs of Mr. H. P. Burke Downing, which are illustrated in Fig. 5. The plan in this case was selected from over one hundred submitted in open competition, and as it was approved without the slightest alteration by the Education Department, it may be taken as a model plan and worth a good deal of attention. The school is to be built in two parts, the infants department being erected first, and the girls department being afterwards added. Like the infants school at South Shields, it is of one storey only, and on the hall system, and the hall, it will be noticed, runs almost due north and south, while every single classroom has left-hand light provided, and can obtain direct sunlight at some time or other during the...
