Excerpt: . a more profitable, and at the same time sound investment, for so large a sum as that. Should you, however, allow your 150Z. to remain in the Post Office Savings Bank, you must send up your book to the head office every year, when the interest due will be added, until the whole amounts to 2001., after which time it will cease to bear interest, but will of course be perfectly safe, though so long as it remains there it will be quite useless to you. When you wish to withdraw money you must go to a Post Office Savings Bank and ask for a notice of withdrawal. You will have nothing to pay for this, and having filled it up with the amount you wish to withdraw, and signed your name to it, you must fold and post it to The Comptroller of...
