LAND AND FREEDOM, 1927, VOL. 27 (CLASSIC REPRINT) (HARDBACK)DOWNLOAD

Forgotten Books, 2018. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Land and Freedom, 1927, Vol. 27 In paying his tribute to the founder of the movement the chairman (mr. Hobbs) said he looked upon Henry George as the greatest reformer since the time of Christ. Although his enemies had not crucified him they would gladly have destroyed his work. He blazed a pathway of intelligence through the injustice from which mankind had suffered for many ages. His works shone as a beacon light, warning the people of the social dangers around them brought about by the curse of land monopoly. The Assistant Secretary has also helped a good deal in taking charge of the work while the Secretary (mr. A. G. Huie) conducted a campaign round the country, the biggest he has yet undertaken. He travelled in a motor car which was presented to the League by a friend some time ago, he delivered speeches at all the leading towns along the route, which he mostly reported himself, the reports being generally published by the local press. On previous country tours he used to hire a hall, arrange for a chairman, and engage a bellman, but he soon found that he could get a better crowd at a good street corner without any expense except that of advertising the meet ing. Everywhere, of course, he sold the Standard, renew ing subscriptions and getting new ones. He would have done still better work as a propagandist had he arranged beforehand with someone in the towns he was to visit to distribute tracts and other literature free and sell the Standard while he was preaching the word. This should certainly be done in connection with the next coun try tour. However, it was...
