

The Galactic Festival: Puzzles (Paperback)

By Paul Holmes

New Curiosity Shop, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .How do Gravity Trains work? Is it possible to cross all the bridges just once? Can an infinite hotel ever be truly full? Why do left and right reverse in a mirror when up and down do not? Which asymmetric dice should you choose? Why are digital roots so useful? Can you survive a bite from a Logonian mamba? How many infinities are there? ? And just how many fingers do Trellians actually have? These questions and many others are explored in Paul Holmes second volume of puzzles. Written as a science fiction story with a twist, each chapter is a separate puzzle, involving mathematics, logic, anagrams, physics, word play, number theory and a cipher. The chapters are interspersed with much shorter brain teasers (including Where in the World Am I?, What Comes Next?, Wordy Interludes, General Knowledge quiz questions and a Word Search) especially designed for those with only a few minutes to spare. About The Galactic Festival Interstellar trader, Captain Jim Singleton, lives in Yorkshire but spends most of his time in space bars, on sinister planets far from the civilising...
