TOWARDS HEALTHIER METROPOLITAN CITIES

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | A geospatial approach using Cairo,Egypt as a case study | Metropolitan cities are expanding and increasing worldwide, in order to accommodate population growth and continuing trends in urban migration. This results in degradation of living conditions and in many urban health problems. Living conditions that influence urban health involve many parameters. The present study focuses on three aspects of those parameters: urban growth, exposure to natural hazards and services spatial justice. The...
