Not illustrated. 1898 Excerpt: .the first time on the first day, and this was immediately followed by adding the sheets once. On the third day the sheets were added twice again, and so on. The same nonsense syllables were used as described in Experiment C. In Experiment F, however, each slip was studied until it could be repeated correctly before another slip was learned. Usually five or six slips were learned in the time allowed. Complete records were taken from two subjects only, Sd and Hn. The former added the sheets twice in succession ten times, and added the sheets preceded by the syllables ten times. The latter did this but five times. The following table gives the results. The work was done at the same hour each day in the case of both subjects. Table X. It is seen by this table that the number of seconds for adding the sheets the second time, when the adding was immediately repeated, was considerably greater than for adding the first time; and that the time for adding the sheets after the syllables had been learned was less than that for adding the first time by an even greater difference. There is no exception to this rule. Another subject (Lr.) was started upon the same experiment and showed the same features in his result, but, as the work was not long continued, the results are not given. The following record of mistakes made in the adding is seen to be in perfect...
