Excerpt from Thirteenth Annual Report of the Directors of the New-York Institution for the Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb, to the Legislature of the State of New-York: For the Year 1831 Another improvement which has been introduced into the department of instruction, is to furnish each pupil with a book, in which there is a continuity of thought, as soon as, or even before, he is able to understand, Of himself, the meaning of words in simple, connected phrases. Its advantages are, that. It will render the instruction more uniform and systematic, not depending upon the state of feeling in the mind of the instructor which circumstances may produce; inspire a thirst for knowledge, by creating a fondness for reading, and supersede, to a considerable extent, the necessity of copying lessons, which is attended with no small expense of time and writing materials.
