Excerpt: .examination, and at its conclusion I was sent to Cambridge jail without bail, to await the action of the Grand Jury. About one hundred others were arrested at the same time I was, but only twelve beside myself were ever indicted. As fears were entertained that I might be rescued, I was taken to old Concord, where I remained in jail until court convened--in November, I think. At that time two indictments were found against me, after four days had been spent in examining witnesses, one for arson and one for burglary, both hanging offenses in those days. I was tried in East Cambridge before Judges Marcus, Morton, Shaw and True. My counsel was Samuel Wheeler and another lawyer, whose name I have forgotten. The trial lasted ten days, and during the whole time the court room was crowded to its utmost capacity by men and women, while hundreds were turned away every day. The interest was the greater because I was tried as principal, while all the others were either accessories or indicted for minor offenses. The testimony against me was point blank and sufficient to have convicted twenty men, but somehow I proved an alibi, and the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, after having been out for twenty-one hours. When the verdict was announced such a shout went up as I never heard even in a New Hampshire town meeting. So beside themselves were the spectators that several were...
