Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Onlooker, Vol. 1: A Monthly Review of Current Event Canadian and General, Toronto, July, 1920 There is a great difference between the digging of ditches and school-teaching. If you engage a man to open up a ditch a hundred yards long, two feet wide, and three feet deep, it docs not require great skill in appreciation to know when the job is done. But it is quite a different matter when a community of people of varying temper and experience engage a man or woman to take charge of forty children of diverse age, physique, fortune and experience in order to give the instruction best fitted to make of each one a useful member of civilized society. There are so many chances of error. It may only be long years thereafter, that people can say with certainty whether the teaching was good or bad. No bureau of standards yet invented contains the necessary instruments for measuring with exactness the progress of mind and soul in the developing human creature. The doors of the temple of...
