On the right side of the altar stand nine innocent youths in a row, and on the left a row of nine pure maidens, with goblets filled with kumiss consecrated to the benevolent deities. The splendid festival attire worn on this occasion by a Yakut girl is shown in Plate XX, which represents both back and front views. The trimming consists of valuable fur, silver pendants, and other decorations. The steward addresses a prayer to the creators, begging for blessings, --increase of horses and cattle, a good harvest of hay, good health for the people and animals, and an abundance of food. Then he takes the kumiss-festival ladle (ysyax xamy. yaha), and makes a libation, in the direction of the dawn, to the benevolent deities (see Plate xvn). Then, while making a libation to the ground, he...
