ASSOULINE, United States, 2013. Hardback. Condition: New. New edition. Language: English . Brand New Book. Africa In Style: It is not unusual to see the colors and hear the rhythms of Africa at runway shows in Paris, New York, or Milan. But despite its influence on Western designers, African fashion is still struggling to make itself known. With the ambitious goal of reinventing urban fashion, many young African designers are breaking away from the expectations imposed on them to infuse ethnic and folkloric themes into their work. This book brings together archival images, illustrations, and photographs to paint a lively picture of this constantly evolving world, featuring designers and labels including Alphadi, Xule Bet, Oumou Sy, Juliette Ombang, Mickael Kra, and more. Cocktails: The cocktail has a place in our social culture that stylishly evolves as the years go by. In this lusciously illustrated volume, Amy Sacco, the ultimate cocktail cognoscenti, restores the spirit of this sexy drink, sharing favorite recipes from her exclusive nightclubs including Lot 61 and Bungalow 8. The restaurant and bar owner credited with converting New York City into the go-to party destination also reminisces on the most important cocktail moments of the past decade, and offers tips on how to serve them with flair, in the latest bar and stemware. The perfect holiday GIFTS. Jean-Paul Hevin: Since the earliest times, cacao - chocolate - has been highly valued and served as food for the kings and gods. For Parisians, the word chocolate often follows the name Jean-Paul Hevin. His creations in sugar and cream broke with convention, raising the expectations of a generation and defining what fine chocolate means today. His storied ascension from boyhood in rural France led him through the kitchens of culinary masters and finally to Japan, a land that was open to...
