Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Going Home You know how we used to wonder what kind of a home The Nest was, and how I would like it, and what I would think of the world. Well, I am going to tell you now, dear. You are aware, The Nest is not really my home, but my Guardian's, and I am only to stay here a year, till Mamma comes home from Europe. But I love it now as my home, dearly, dearly, and oh! I just wish you could see it. I think if you were here with me, it would be twice as sweet as it is, but it is very sweet anyhow. The house is of gray-stone, with ivy clinging to it every where. It is circular in form, and buried in trees, truly like a nest. In these trees, thousands of birds live and sing all day long. The grounds are like places you read of in fairy tales, full of grottoes, and rustic bridges, and summer-houses, and all kinds of beautiful surprises. They are not laid out like a garden anywhere, and yet they are full of the most exquisite flowers. But I need not try to describe them, or the inside of the house either, which is quite as odd and beautiful, for I never could. You must see them. My room is a little gem. It is octagon-shaped, with rose colored walls, and snowy ceilings bordered with wood-work of carved flowers. There is a pretty carpet with a pattern of rose-buds on a light ground the chairs are willow, and the other furniture as delicate and bright as any could be. The windows are shaded by...
