Excerpt: . part ii. suggested treatment of the elements of welfare. topic I.--health. Approach to the topic.--In the introductory lessons the first thing to be fixed in the consciousness of the pupil is the importance of health. Each pupil should be led to see its importance to Mm, so that the entire class will deduce the fact that they have a common interest in the matter. By extension of the idea, it may be seen that health is a subject of common interest to the entire school and to the community as a whole. Also each pupil should be led to realize that, in this important matter of health, he is dependent upon the other members of the class and of the school and that the other members are likewise dependent upon him. The same interdependence exists in the community at large. This being true, the members of the class, the school, the city, the State, and the Nation must work together, and to this end definite provisions have been made by communities. Whether these community arrangements for health prove effective or not depends largely upon the interest and intelligence with which each citizen supports them. The following suggestive approach to the topic Health was used last year by F. W. Carrier, principal of the Wilmington (Mass.) High School. This class had just finished a course in hygiene. From their textbook in this subject they were asked to select nine of the most important...
