E. E. S. A History or Education In The United States. By Edwin Grant Dexter, Professor of Education in the University of Illinois. 1904. Pp. 656. $2. New York: The Macmillan Co. A scholarly work based upon a painstaking study of the original sources of educational history from the early colonial period to the present time. The treatment includes the development of educational practice in the different sections of the country, the gradual organization of these parts into the unity of a national system, the various phases of educational endeavor including educational extension through libraries, the press, summer schools, learned societies, correspondence teaching, etc. While the volume is designed primarily for use in pedagogical classes, it will prove a valuable source of accurate information for the thoughtful teacher and parent, and will be welcomed in the reference library. G. E. V. A New School Management. By Levi Seeley, Professor of Pedagogy in the New Jersey State Normal School. Pp. 329. $1.25. New York: Hinds Noble. A text-book for normal school students dealing with the technicalities of school management, yet written in so wise and cheery a fashion as to be good reading for the layman. The discussions of punishment, school evils, school virtues, and school morals are especially enlightening. The author proves himself a good school-master by his constant...
