I just started off reading this article pdf. It really is simplistic but shocks in the fifty percent of your ebook. You will not truly feel monotony at at any time of the time (that's what catalogues are for about when you request me).

URBAN CORRELATOR

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: Südwestdeutscher Verlag für Hochschulschriften | Strategies for an ecologically adaptable urban and architectural development | 40 years after "The limits to growth" the post oil boom economy affects countries in resource scarce environments like the Arabian Peninsula in the Middle East with expanding urbanisation. Those cities and architectures are based on fossil fuel driven technologies to control the surrounding arid hot climate for the benefits of human comfort. As a result skyscrapers are flourishing out of desert sands. Their ecological footprint in terms of resource consumption and the resulting emissions is nearly six planet earths, but celebrated by imported quantitative evaluation methods from North America or Europe with platinum medals for sustainable building practices. This dichotomy displays the global quest for 'sustainable' development on the one hand side and the lack of integrating the inherent bio-climatic, socio-cultural and political-economical prerequisites of those newly developing countries on the other. The Urban Correlator provides a qualitative thinking model of involved parameters and associated strategies based on ecological system principles to combat the quest of sustainable urban and architectural development. | Format: Paperback | Language/Sprache: english | 377 gr | 220x150x14 mm | 272 pp.
