Since substantial quantities of steel are sold at negotiated prices, a transaction measure is used in this analysis for both domestic and imported steel. The measure is derived by using a weighted average of the prices of five products: bars, cold rolled steel, hot rolled steel, plates, and structures. These products accounted for approximately 45 percent of domestic steel production and more than 50 percent of imported steel during the period. The data for imports through 1976 and for domestic production through 1979 was taken from Crandall, U. S. Steel Industry in Recurrent Crisis, pp. 154-155, 164-165; data for subsequent years were derived by the Congressional Budget Office. The Gross National Product deflator is used to remove the effects of inflation. 19. James T. H. NOTE: Adjusted by GNP Deflator. effect in 1971 when they increased domestic steel production by 6 percent. The study relied on the Bureau of Labor Statistics producer price index to measure changes in steel prices. This index, however, does not adequately reflect transaction prices and most likely overstates the actual price increases. For example, between 1968 and 1970 the ITC study assumes that domestic prices increased by 11. 5 percent, measured in current dollars, while...
