To represent Washington and Howe at Boston, stick a blueheaded pin on Dorchester Heights, and a red-headed one within the city. When the latter General evacuates, remove his pin representative to Halifax, and trace hit course thither with red ink or crayon. At that place also, stick another pin of similar shade, to represent the Admiral who here joined General Howe with reinforcements from England. Then, as the war proceeds with the attack on Ft. Moultrie, with another pin represent Gen. Clinton, and trace his course by sea to his new position off New York. Thither also bring the two pins Howes from Halifax, and Washington from Boston, tracing bis line of march with blue, and theirs with red. Thus proceed with the entire account, taking...
