Until 1979 a lot of new ski resorts were developed. At the beginning of the 80 s the politicians intervened in the wild extension in the Alps and organized the development of this natural space. The rapid expansion was finished.<sup>1</sup> In the 80 s and 90 s, the enterprises began to integrate further parts of the value chain. Pure lift operators became big ski resort companies. From the beginning of the 90 s the growth of winter sportsmen stagnated.<sup>2</sup> In total there are about 32 million skiers in Europe.<sup>3</sup> Nowadays it is nearly impossible to open new resorts. Consequently the ski resort companies are more asked to improve their services, make up combinations with other resorts, built up co- operations or downsize the companies to compete with other ski resorts in the mountains. This market is really hard battled and the suppliers try to find their niches like family-, pure sport- or snowboard resorts. They started to concentrate on their core competencies at the end of the 90 s and invested huge amounts of money to upgrade the important transport possibilities like chair lifts or gondolas in the whole resorts. Most of the smaller and middle sized ski resorts work with deficit.<sup>4</sup> This made it extremely important in the 90 s for...
