HarperCollins Publishers, United Kingdom, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: N/A. Brand New Book. A major literary event: a never-before-published work from the author of the American classic, Their Eyes Were Watching God, which brilliantly illuminates the horror and injustices of slavery as it tells the true story of the last known survivor of the Atlantic slave trade - illegally smuggled from Africa on the last Black Cargo ship to America. The never-before-published work covers the life of Kossola, also known as Cudjo Lewis, who in 1927 was one of the last living survivors of the Atlantic slave trade. Barracoön is phenomenal because Cudjo's story begins when he is free and a young man living in Africa. It describes the circumstances of his capture by Dahomian warriors and his detention in a barracoön while awaiting his trade to slavers. It describes how he was smuggled out of Africa onto the last Black Cargo ship, the Clotilda, and tells of his journey through the Middle Passage, to his arrival in the United States on the Alabama River near Mobile, Alabama. The narrative also recounts Kossola's five and a half years of enslavement, his freedom, and his role in the founding of Africatown, the first town established by and continuously controlled by Africans. In 1927, famed anthropologist Franz Boaz and Carter G. Woodson, the father of black history, sent writer Zora Neale Hurston to Plateau, Alabama, to interview eight-six-year-old Cudjo Lewis. Of the millions of men, women, and children transported from Africa to America as Slaves, Cudjo Lewis was the only survivor of the Clotilda to tell the story of this essential part of our nation's history. Boas and Woodson wanted Cudjo's firsthand account of the raid that led to his capture and bondage, more than fifty years after...
