It is 1988 and Rafael Aviles, an engineer at the Cuban Mint in Havana, is a young, earnest Communist Party member living with his ambitious wife, Elena. When Rafael is drafted to the war in Angola, just as he is about to become a father, he takes a risk to escape the military-convinced he is doing what s best for his country. As Communist countries around the world begin to see change, Cuba enters its dire Special Period and Rafael s family does what it can to survive. Rafael becomes disenchanted at work and, after a disastrous meeting with Fidel Castro, questions his Party ideals. Finally, he s convinced to do everything in his power to leave the island and improve his family s future. This is at once a love story-for family and country-as well as a portrait of Havana during this tumultuous time.
