HarperBusiness. Paperback. Condition: New. 304 pages. Dimensions: 7.8in. x 5.3in. x 0.6in. In 1990, IBM had its most profitable year ever. By 1993, the company was on a watch list for extinction -- victimized by its own lumbering size, an insular corporate culture, and the PC era IBM had itself helped invent. Enter Lou Gerstner. The presumption was that Gerstner had joined IBM to preside over its continued dissolution into a confederation of autonomous business units -- effectively eliminating the corporation that had invented many of the industrys most important technologies. Instead, Gerstner took hold of the company, making the bold decision to keep it together, defiantly announcing, The last thing IBM needs right now is a vision. Told in Lou Gerstners own words, this is a story of an extraordinary turn-around, a case study in managing a crisis, and a thoughtful reflection on the computer industry and the principles of leadership. Summing up his historic business achievement, Gerstner recounts high-level meetings, explains the no-turning-back decisions that had to be made, and offers his hard-won conclusions about the essence of what makes a great company run.
