Ecoparque

By -

National Film Network, United States, 2000. DVD video. Book Condition: New. 180 x 138 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. Tijuana is not only an entry point of people from Mexico to the United States, it is also the entry point of water that collects in the Tijuana River Watershed. The water flows via the Tijuana River and its tributaries from Mexico and empties into estuaries and coastal waters of the United States. In the developing neighborhoods of Tijuana, ecologists and architects from both countries have implemented a decentralized park system that addresses one of earth's most pressing challenges--the conservation of water quality and resources in the midst of growing populations and economies. This film explores the creation and impact of Ecoparque. Based on permacultural principles, this innovative system transforms residents wastewater into a flourishing park on a formerly barren urban hillside. This reuse of waste simultaneously serves as a welcome alternative to the release of sewage into coastal waters. Ecoparque's faculty and staff describe how the biofiltration derives safe, nutrient-rich water and compost that support the diverse ecosystem around the facility. Neighborhood members express how the rare green area provides a valued educational center and a...
