The inspiration for writing these books came when I babysat for my grandchildren. And because I had nothing to read to them. I wanted to portray a heroic character for a child to look up to. There are many books that feature police officers. But there are few written about their K-9 s companions. Bless them for being there and for doing their jobs. The world is a better place because these dogs, and the lives they save. In Book One of Bella s Journey, Bella, is a puppy left alone in a dark forgotten alley. Small and fuzzy, a Golden Retriever, born from award winning blood line parents. Her owners called Bella a runt . They assumed her size meant she was not suitable for breeding future generations of show dogs. Left in a cardboard box, abandoned and left to die. In Book Two, she is found by Harry Belgrave an injured police officer. She is loved and grow s up to be the family dog. She trains to guard and protect, but she is a dog loved and shows love back. I tell my story, from my point of view, and as you know by now, I am a dog.
