

The God Imperative: Why We Need Faith to Safeguard Reason, Science and Liberty

By Dave Dentel

Half a League Onward Press, United States, 2011. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 213 x 140 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Is religion a malicious lie caused by a virus of the mind? A growing movement led by scientists, authors and other intellectuals certainly thinks so. And they claim the facts support them, citing in particular the theory of evolution and its implicit agnosticism. But are they right? Would society be better off if it rejected God and turned instead to a rationalist basis for law and ethics? In a word, no. In his new book, The God Imperative, author Dave Dentel exposes point by point the falsehoods behind the new atheists arguments, including: Science and the weakness of evolution: How Darwinism fails because it can t account for life origins, describe a mechanism for evolutionary change, or explain human consciousness. It certainly can t prove God is a hoax. On the contrary, new scientific evidence points toward design. Free will and the problem of evil: Calling religion evil actually points to a bigger problem, accounting for why the notion of fairness and justice even exist. Morality must come from a transcendent source, otherwise systems...
